V(D). Planned Program (Activity)

1. Brief description of the Activity

Alabama is 45% rural. The rural Black Belt counties of Alabama pose a unique challenge for the land-grant system due to the demographic, social, and economic distinction of the region. The well-being and societal contributions of this population hinges on having viable communities, businesses and economies. This viability becomes significantly important in rural communities where the majority of the residents are poor.

Research at Tuskegee University continues to focus on the assessment of the current measures for economic growth, equity issues and quality of life indicators as elements of sustainable rural development in the Black Belt of Alabama.

At Auburn University, research is being conducted on natural resource and environmental issues that affect the economic opportunities and quality of life in rural areas of Alabama. Another major research area is in the identification of issues that affect marriages and families in Alabama and to better understand the patterns of consistency and change in marriages.

Research at Alabama A & M University has been designed to ascertain the impact of technology and sustainable agriculture practices on the well-being of farmers, particularly small- and medium-sized farms in Alabama.

Investigations at Tuskegee University focused on critical factors necessary for sustainable rural community development including those that apply to resource development (e.g., land loss and retention), economic development (e.g., small business and micro enterprises), and socio-political development (e.g., access and equity issues). Sustainability of related farm and other small business operations depends on factors and program or policy initiatives that are undertaken by governments (federal, state and local), community-based organizations and engaged institutions such as Tuskegee University. Our programs have led to the development of the farmers markets in Tuskegee and Selma becoming more sustainable, with more produce being sold and receipts reported. There were 11 micro loans secured from out-of-state financial institutions through the SBA Community Express Program as well as 3 farm ownership loans, 17 operating loans, 7 equipment loans, 13 housing loans and 9 livestock loans.

Research at Auburn University is evaluating the unique needs and opportunities associated with timberland owners of 50 acres and less. Appropriate harvesting and wood processing technologies were identified to meet the needs of owners of small timberland tracts, and local farmers, in order that they might sell timber and enhance their economic status.

The Black Belt region in west Alabama is under very serious economic challenges due to strong international competition of imported catfish with the domestic catfish industry. Auburn University researchers are seeking alternative species for aquaculture to address the stiff competition. Bull minnows proved to be a viable alternative species for culture in low salinity water sources of the Alabama Black Belt. They reproduced successfully in several water sources, grew at acceptable rates and could be transported without difficulty. Market studies showed an unfulfilled demand that possibly can be met by production in the Alabama Black Belt.

Working with high schools through Alabama, Auburn University researchers developed and implemented a curriculum ("Relationship Smarts") that addresses healthy relationship development. Results indicate that the adolescents who participated in the curriculum developed more accurate and realistic attitudes about dating relationships, and felt that they had gained skills in communicating and managing conflict in dating relationships.

V(G). State Defined Outcomes

O No.	Outcome Name
1	High school graduation rate (88.8% AL Dept. Educ. 2004-2005, from drop-out rate = 11.18%). Improvements in community and family integrity should increase this (medium term outcome).
2	Educational attainment (post secondary) (AL Dept Educ., Fall 2005, 55.8% of all high school graduates were enrolled in AL colleges). Success of this program should increase this (long-term outcome).
3	The number of small businesses should increase with success of this program. In 2001, US Bureau of Labor states that 229.7 (in thousands) 'non-employer' firms were existent in AL (medium term outcome).
4	AL Dept. Health notes that 4 of Alabama's 67 counties have fewer than 3 physicians per 10,000 residents. Success of this program should increase this (medium term outcome).
